1981—A very good year

Shari Southworth wipes her chin after a sticky noontime "fill-the-test-tube with-chocolate pour."

It was a year of involvement, enthusiasm and spirit. We lost friends and gained new ones. We soared to victories and held our heads high through defeat. We watched disco die, went western and punked out.

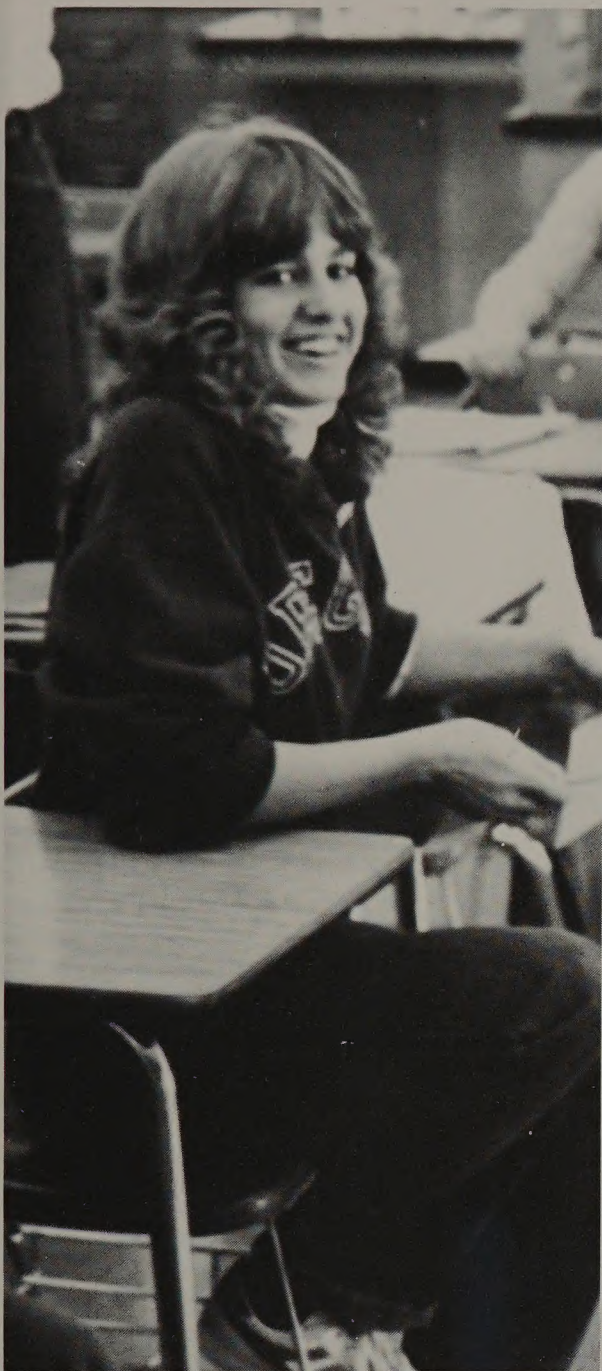

We held our breath through an attempted assassination of the President; together finally, we cheered the return of the 52 American hostages from Iran.

We rocked and rolled, partied and had a good time. We studied and went to school; our knowledge broadened.

Some were good times, some bad. Some of us layed back and took it all in; some of us made it happen. Still, we all grew, learned and experienced. It was a very good year. This book is an attempt to capture the spirit of that year. We hope you enjoy it.

Finishing an assignment early leaves Christi Davis time to look around.

Toni Yates gasps for breath and shows her elation at winning the 300m hurdles in the district meet.

Carla Akins and Yolanda McCoy join the rest of Mr. Amato's class in tying yellow ribbons on the senior locker room the day the hostages returned home.

Colts leave lasting impression

Fewer injuries and more lucky breaks could have made the difference between finishing in sixth place (out of 10) and achieving the team's goal of a spot in the district playoffs.

With an average line weight of 160 pounds, the Colts were considered small by AAA standards. Marshfield, for example, started linemen tipping the scales at 185-190 pounds. "It was a difference you always noticed," recalled one lineman.

But to watch the Colts in action was to believe they evenly matched their opponents. "We could have won every game we played," Coach Luckey said. "No one ever pushed us around."

For the coaches and the hundreds of Thurston fans that became particularly evident during the mid-season contest against the Sheldon Irish, reigning 5AAA champions. Down 15-7 late in the 4th quarter, after an earlier field goal attempt had failed, quarterback Todd Alberts executed a "tremendous drive" from his 30-yard line deep into Irish territory. Precision completions to Steve Landrum, Marty Grant and Mike LeVeque drove the Colts to the Irish 21-yard line. Alberts converted a crucial fourth-and-nine situation, and in the next series, Thurston took the ball across the Sheldon goal from 8 yards out. With 21 seconds to go, Albert went for a two-point conversion pass to tie the game, but the Irish defense intercepted.

"His pass was right where it should have been, but so was Sheldon's defensive back David Hinkle," Coach Luckey said.

However, the best remembered game was the one sugar-coated with victory. For the ninth straight year, the Colt's beat the Springfield Millers in a contest that looked more like a mud bath than a football game. In the end the Colts stopped a strong Miller drive and ran the clock out to win 14-12.

Quarterback Todd Alberts checks the sidelines before calling the final signals of the season in the Colt's victory over the Millers.

Linebacker Vergil Backes (right) blitzes through the line to sack Churchill's quarterback.

Churchill's defense (opposite page) can also sack, as Stuart Mathews discovers beneath Churchill bruiser Bill Tarrow.

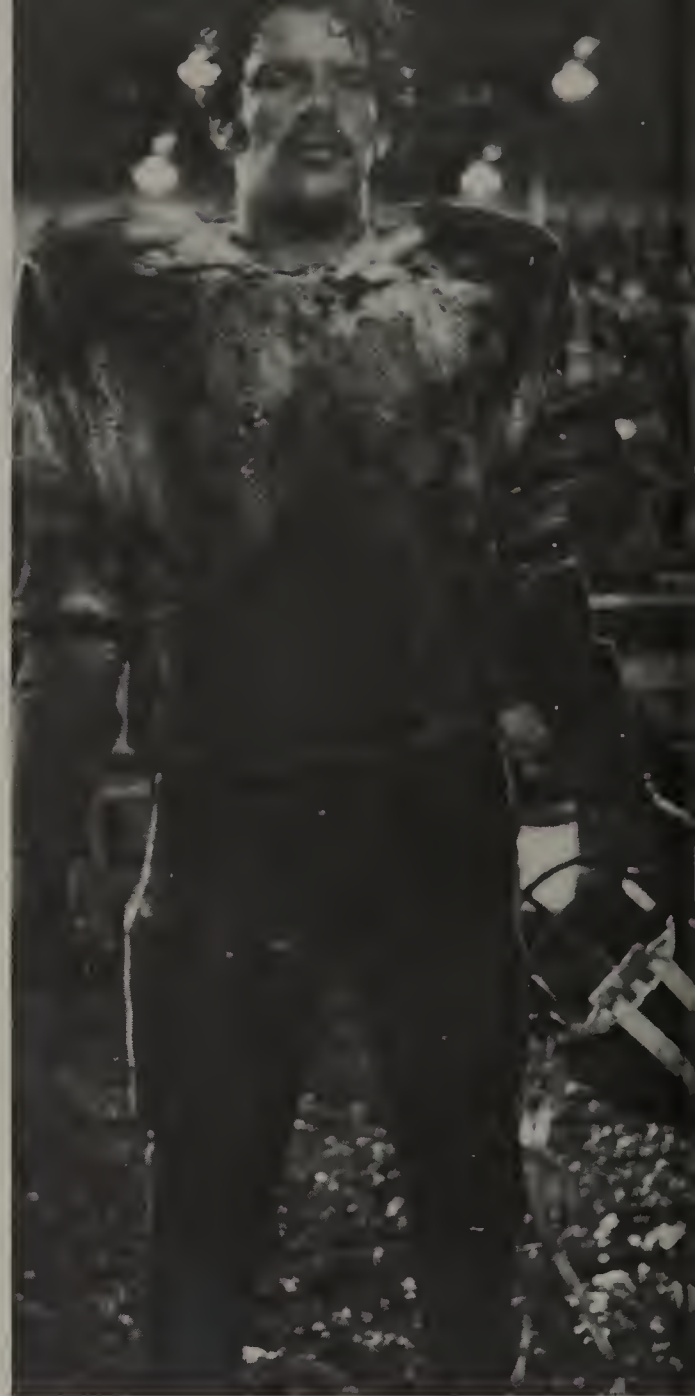

Three Churchill defenders charge into the secondary to force Steve Landrum to the outside during the Churchill game an Autzen Stadium.

Coach Scott Johnson and head coach Kevin Luckey concentrate on the Miller offense from the sidelines.

No astro turf here, as can be seen on Kevin Hafner following the Colt's victorious mud bath with sister school Springfield. Hold em! As the Millers take their final possession of the game, Todd Wagner, Troy Mathews, Jim Borns come to life along the sidelines.

JV team provides surprises

Not every losing season is disappointing—especially for the team that loses fewer games than expected.

For the JV Colts, such was the case. In a pre-season poll of district coaches, the JVs were picked to finish last in the league.

The team didn't follow that prediction, though. In addition to finishing in the middle of the league 4-5, the Colts treated their fans and the Springfield Millers to a surprise finale.

Going into the game, the Millers (No. 1 in the pre-season district poll) were hands-down favorites. This slim chance of victory, together with typical November rain, might have led some to ask: Why bother?

That question wasn't on the players' minds, however, as they thundered through mud and Millers to emerge with a 21-6 victory.

Coach Jim Montgomery recalled that the win came from a strong running game and a hard-hitting defense. Running backs Ed Johnson and Ed Morris gained a combined total of 271 yards in the game. Defensive standouts were linebackers Steve Schelsky and Todd Wagner.

Rick Tabor and Todd Wagner go for a North Bend punt.

Varsity Volleyball 'machine' wins big

The odds-makers would have lost money betting against the Colt's highly skilled volleyball "machine."

Ranked 12th in the state after the first month, and later elevated to 7th, the varsity players blasted their way into the state finals where they claimed fourth place.

In his first year as varsity coach, Warren Weiseth praised the team for being very independent—receiving direction and discipline internally from the players instead of the coach. Team captain Jennifer Gillis "did a great job of keeping the team going and improving," Coach Weiseth said. Two-and-one-half hour practices every weekday (including game days) regularly tested the team's dedication. "They (the practices) were great and were the single most important aspect of this team. We tried to practice intensely and efficiently every day," he said.

Having an abundance of eager and talented players left the coach with the difficult decision of making sure the best six (of nine) players were on the floor at once.

Practicing 2½ hours a day leaves little room for anything else—instead of victories, that is.

Cheryl Christensen rises on her toes, ready to respond to La Grande's serve in the state playoffs.

JV Volleyball big winners

When it came to spotlighting the stars on the volleyball court, the winning varsity volleyball team usually over shadowed all others. However, the junior varsity team proved itself no less successful throughout the season.

Of 16 matches, Coach Lou Woodford's spikers claimed all but one a loss to Springfield High School. Thurston and Springfield shared the unofficial first place position in the district each with a 15-1 match-win record. Of 35 games (best two games winning a match), the Thurston JVs won 31.

Coach Woodford named Robin Bigelow as the most valuable player; six footer Peggy Pape was selected as best blocker and hitter. Most improved players were junior shelly Sapp and sophomore Hayley Johnson. The coach added that the team had very good players at every position.

The Freshmen Varsity and JV Volleyball teams had winning season. Coach Revell remembers: "This was one of the closest teams I have ever coached. They were a great group of people to work with, and I grew fond of their sense of humor and love for each other. We were one . . . and what a great team!"

Noted for outstanding work during the season were freshmen varsity players: Diane Wright, most valuable; Kathy Healey, most inspirational; and Anna Lange, most improved.

Freshmen junior varsity players were: Ruth Rowland, most valuable; Julie Cupp, most inspirational; and Leah Clark, most improved.

Colts: 5AAA No. 2; 5 firsts

In a test every bit as psychological as physical for the leaders, Colt harrier Cory Randall set a fast but even pace at the state meet and sped by the leaders of the 158-runner pack to finish with a time of 15:45.5.

Left in Randall's dust with one mile to go, were nationally ranked runners Dan Mazo of South Eugene and Jim Fox from Jesuit in Portland.

These stars set such a blistering pace against one another at the onset that they burned out before the end, allowing Cory to kick past them with ease.

Making their fourth appearance in a row at state, the Colts finished 18th out of 23 teams.

Coach DeWayne Cantrall attributed their low finish partly to injuries suf-

At the district meet at Lane Community College, the Colts came in second after South Eugene. Coach Cantrall noted Randall, Zack Wilson, Tim Walmsley, Dale Northcutt, Ted Thomas and Gary Inselman for their strong performances.

At district, Cory tried unsuccessfully to match Mazo's pace and came in third place. For Cory it proved to be a valuable learning experience—one that helped him to win the State Individual Championship and sent him to the national race in San Francisco, where he placed third out of 6,000 of the nation's best runners.

Cory Randall temporarily matches the pace of Axeman Dan Mazo but fails to beat him in the district meet.

Senior Zack Wilson shows the intense concentration that brings him through the fast paced district meet.

The district meet looks more like a dual as Colts and Axemen jockey for the lead.

Girls Cross Country grows, succeeds

Having doubled in size from the previous year, the 12-runner team multiplied their strength, too. Although they failed to place first in any of their seven meets, Coach Guy Zakrevski said the team "was the best in recent year."

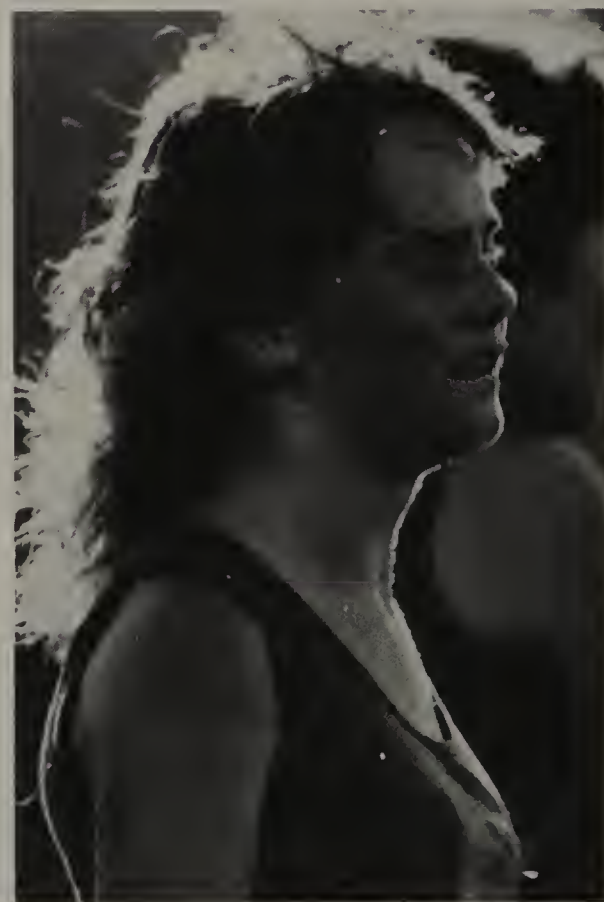

For the second years, junior Anita Curtis led the runners. She was followed by Della Smith, Jeni Baden, Ann Peterson and Lori Hooker. Enthusiasm and Leadership, "a key to the team's improvement," were provided by senior captains Della Smith and DelRae Kleppe.

"The future of the Girls Cross Country team is very exciting because the girls are winners and will bring much success and recognition to Thurston High School," said Coach Guy Zakrevski.

Recipe for great gymnastics

Mix some talent and pride together with dedicated practice and skillful coaching. Add a generous portion of love and friendship. Combine for one season, and presto! You have the Flying Fillie Gymnastics team.

For a sport that is inherently individual, the Fillies were exceptionally team oriented. Seeing the group throng around each performer before and after her event was ample proof of the team's unity. Recognizing the way that Thurston's team stood out from all others, the 5AAA coaches voted Robin Wilcox Coach of the Year for the second year in

In competition, the Fillies corralled third place (of eight) at the district meet and placed first in three contests. Co-captain Kendra DeVos went to state in Portland. There she tied with ten others for 32nd (of 80 competitors). Kendra was also named the most valuable gymnast.

Fall rallies add spirit to competition

The fall rally squads had a very successful year, according to rally adviser Bobbie Haas. The squads dedicated a lot of time and pride to their moves. They had a class each day to try new moves and perfect their old ones; they also practiced three-and-one-half hours per week.

The rally went to a rally camp in Ashland during the summer and won several awards for their display of spirit. The rallies were also responsible for arranging all pep assemblies.

Students get acquainted

The Hello Dance was held Sept. 5, the first Friday of school, in the cafeteria. It was put on by the student council. A band by the name of "Attack and the Fun" played for the dancers.

According to the student council 374 students attended the dance and a profit of $327 was made. The money was later used for an all-school movie/slide show "Hard Times."

Annual signing party draws large crowd

Most of the school attended the annual signing party which was held during the third week of September. Around 1,000 annuals had been sold and about 50 more were sold at the party. The cafeteria was full of people. Even the floor was being used as a place to sit.

Kevin Waggoner and Todd Norenberg flash the cover of the annual before the camera. "It's nice," they said.

The cafeteria was crowded with students during the annual signing party. It was a happy, memory-jolting time spent with friends.

Activities pack Homecoming Week with fun

How many activities can be crammed into one week? From the looks of the signs and the people at Thurston, one might get the idea the world had gone mad with activities.

The weekly schedule read like a program for a fun house tour. Monday witnessed an unlikely combination of toga and western wear. The toga people weren't saying what they did, but the Westerners rounded up a coil of rope for a good, old-fashioned tug of war. The seniors put their hearts, hands and a few other physical attributes to work and pulled off their victory with ease.

Tuesday's guide called for people to pair up and look alike. Because Tuesday and twin fall near the end of the alphabet, the activity is found in the same location: Volkswagon (as in stuffing.) Here size was a drawback and the freshmen took the honors by putting more people into the Volkswagon.

Donny and Marie couldn't make it on Wednesday, but Thurston decided to "go Hawaiian" anyway. Bananas were the big ingredient on Wednesday's menu and the sophomores stuffed more of the bread fruit during the lunches in the cafeteria than any other class.

The sophomores again took the victory column on Thursday by building the largest pyramid on Punk Rock Day (the connection is obvious, right?)

Friday, for those with any left, was Spirit Day. As seen in the gym during the pep assembly, having a week of activities makes students even more active. The sophomores again made their mark by claiming the competition yell, but the real stars were on the Homecoming Court.

Queen Chelle, Court win Homecoming vote

As Homecoming Week began, so did the nominations for the Homecoming Court. Three girls from each grade level were nominated by each homeroom. The three girls with the most votes were selected as the finalists. The girls then selected their escorts. During the week they were voted for by the entire student body. The senior girl who received the most votes was selected as the Queen. The senior girl who received the second most votes was selected as the senior princess. The other princesses from each grade level were the ones who received the most votes. The Court was announced at Friday's pep assembly and they were crowned at the Homecoming football game the same evening.

Saturday night the court joined more than one-hundred and fifty couples at a dance in the cafeteria. Rather than a sound system, the student council hired the band "Felix" to provide the music. "It was a big success", stated council members Brenda Evans and Mollie Rennie.

'Angry Men' examine guilt

Is the young man guilty? Are the jurors so sure of the evidence against him that they can determine whether he should live or die?

Questions such as these faced the jurors in the play Twelve Angry Men by Reginald Rose which ran November 13, 14 and 15. Mr. Bruce Robbins directed the 13-member student cast which performed in the cafeteria.

In the play, twelve jurors must review a controversial murder case and determine the guilt or innocence of the defendant. Initially, the evidence appears to point to a guilty verdict, but one juror holds out, preventing a murder conviction. As the group struggles to convince the holdout, tempers flare behind the locked door of the hot, stuffy room. Following a number of reenactments of the evidence, jurors gradually change their minds and, in the end, reach a unanimous verdict of not guilty.

Tina Christensen argues that the accused, like many other people of his poor, ethnic background is "no good" and should be convicted.

The problems of a president: Reagan is surrounded by reporters in New York City after the election.

Reagan leads GOP landslide

While the presidential campaign entered its final days, Thurston students picked Jimmy Carter over Ronald Reagan by four votes in their own mock election. However, this did not reflect the views of the nation, state or county as Reagan was elected the 40th President of the United States.

The most amazing fact was not that he won, but the size of his win. In a race that political analysts had predicted would be close, Reagan carried all but six states and defeated then-President Jimmy Carter by 8.3 million popular votes and by a huge 489-49 electoral vote margin.

The South, typically a Democratic stronghold, voted as a block for Reagan, excepting Georgia, Carter's home state. The blacks were one of the few factions in America that didn't go for Reagan.

The turn to the right in the country, signalled by the Reagan landslide, caused Republicans and conservative Democrats alike to be elected to office. The Republicans took control of the U.S. Senate and made significant gains in the House.

Locally, incumbent Republican Senator Bob Packwood retained his seat, and Democratic Fourth District Representative Jim Weaver fought off a challenge from GOP candidate Mike Fitzgerald. In state house District 42, incumbent Democrat Nancie Fadeley was upset by Republican challenger, and former Springfield mayor, Vern Meyer. John Lively was elected the new mayor.

Iran hostage crisis persists

The first anniversary of the taking of American hostages in Iran passed on the day that Americans were to elect a new president.

Few believed the crisis would last 365 days. Furthermore, it seemed that nothing had been resolved since the fateful day in November of 1979.

Isolated from the outside world, the 52 U.S. hostages had missed the news reports on the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, the eruption of Mt. St. Helens, and the deaths of eight Americans attempting to free them. Many spectacular events continued to occur that the captives knew little or nothing about.

And on November 4, 1980, the hostages were absent when Ronald Reagan was elected President of the United States. Jimmy Carter's bid for re-election had failed, but he still had two and half months of his term left to rid himself of the problem which plagued him throughout the '80 campaign.

Winter . . .

found the Ski Club canceling ski trips due to a poor snowfall . . . the Boys' Varsity Basketball team going to the State Regionals in Klamath Falls . . . Harold Michaud being chosen for the all-district, all-county, and all-state basketball teams . . . and a special day that brought the country closer together, January 20, 1981, the day a new President was sworn into office and the 52 American hostages were released from Iran.

Colt Varsity: A super season

"It was a very good season, very satisfying toward the end," said Coach Jerry Haugen. His comment may be an understatement, as the Thurston boys varsity basketball team dribbled and shot its way into the state playoffs for the first time since 1975.

One might have counted the Colts out early, as Thurston dropped its first four pre-season games. But they came back to win their first three league games, including a 70-47 thrashing of Cottage Grove.

Thurston ended a three-game losing streak later in the season by defeating the South Eugene Axemen 60-57 in overtime. Still later, after downing North Bend, the Colts were 9-6 and looking toward the playoffs. But three other potential playoff teams stood in front of them.

When the Marshfield Pirates rolled into town, The Colts were ready for them. Thurston shocked the eventual league champion and third-place finisher at the state playoffs 43-40. The Colts dropped their next game with Sheldon, but came back to whip cross-town rival Springfield and make the district playoffs.

In their first match, South Eugene crushed the Colts by 21 points. In their next game, however, Thurston held off Sheldon 47-43 to earn a spot in the state regional quarter finals.

Their season came abruptly to an end in Klamath Falls. After leading most of the game, the Colts finally fell to Mazama, 57-47.

Harold Michaud received All-district honors and was named most valuable player for the Colts. Stuart Mathew and Ernie Smith were named most inspirational and most improved, respectively.

Ernie Smith aggressively goes for the basket as he is fouled by a North Eugene player.

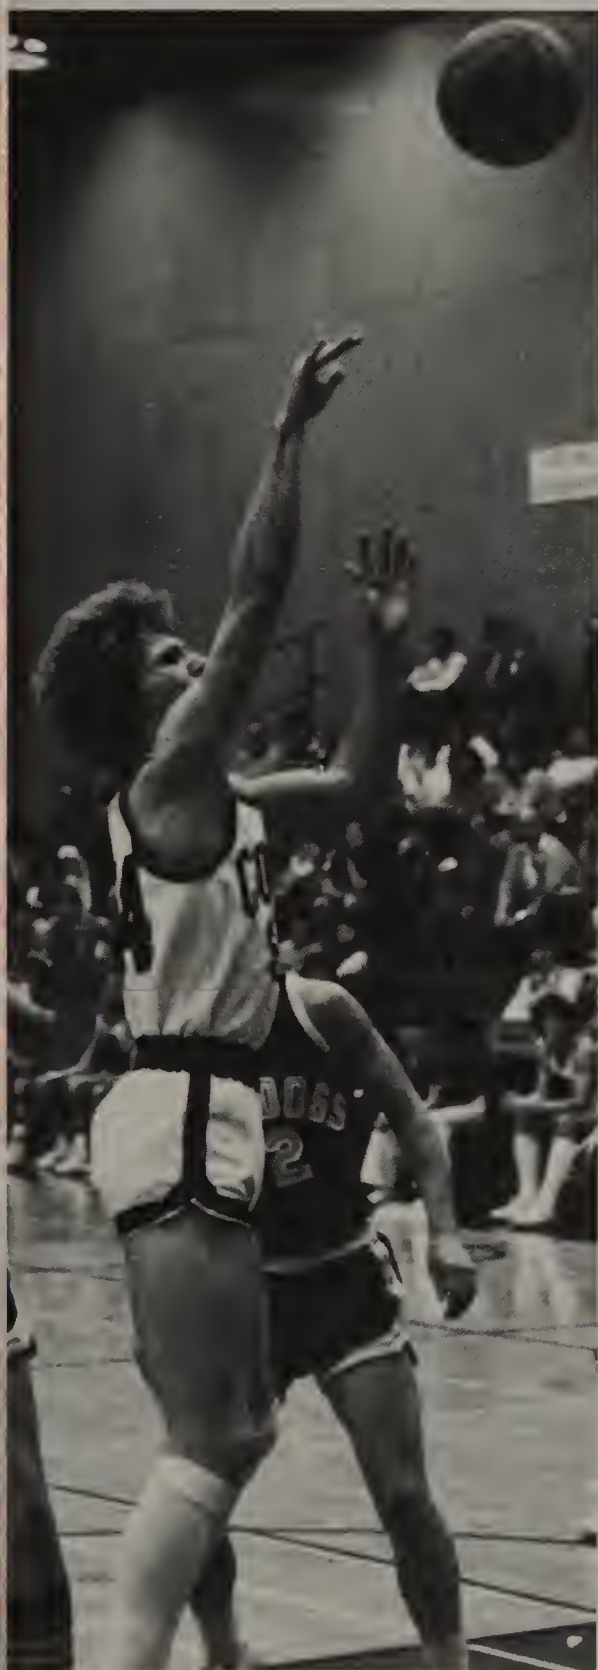

The thrill of victory: The Colts are greeted by teammates and fans as they exit the court after downing the Sheldon Irish 47-43 and making the state playoffs.

The Colts, leading 40-36, wait for Sheldon to re-enter the game in the waning moments of the district playoff contest.

Varsity girls contend with host of opponent

Getting a fast start is perhaps as important in basketball as it is in horse racing. And, unfortunately, Thurston's girls started too slow.

First, there was the state volleyball playoffs which tied up several of the starters just as the team was forming. Then, as they were finally getting together, a plague of illnesses and injuries wiped out another group of players. One player lost 16 games after a back injury during play and a combination of sprained ankles, bad knees and the flu sent Coach Tom Wareham to the junior varsity roster for new recruits.

As if to discount any notion that they might be goldbrickers, the players (now missing only two starters) came on strong at the end of the season to beat the top two teams in the district. Their coach never doubted their ability, though. He said the team, when together, had a great balance of height, shooting and ball handling.

The coaches (Wareham and assistant Ginny Revell) selected Lisa Boehm, most valuable player; Cheryl Christensen, most improved; and Vera Kast, most inspirational.

All-district honors went to Jackie Coburn, second team and Sherrie Riley, honorable mention.

Cheryl Christensen (12) and Ruthanne Thompson go for the ball after a foul shot.

Beneath the net, Tanya Essman jockeys to outposition a Willamette player for the rebound.

A six-foot freshman, Nicole Essman has no trouble soaring over this Sheldon player to shoot.

Christy Fisher (20) pulls the ball in to keep it from the Lancers while Nicole Essman goes to the outside to get open.

Lisa Boehm concentrates on the net where she hopes to put her free throw.

Going up to control the jump ball, Nicole matches the reach of her South Eugene opponent.

Cheryl Christensen (32) goes after the ball knocked loose from the Cottage Grove Lions by Sherrie Riley.

Jackie Coburn shoots through the Miller's defense as Kathy Metzler (30) and Lisa Boehm get set to rebound.

In a typical display of team unity and spirit, the bench rushes onto the floor to congratulate their fellow players.

Cathy Metzler drives to the basket to lay in two points for the Colts on the Sheldon home court.

Boys achieve team success

JV Boys Basketball as a team set out to accomplish two goals: to have a winning season, and to hold their opponents to less than 50 points per game for the year. The Colt's opponents averaged 46.2 points per game. Coach Bill Smith said his team's strengths were defense, field goal shooting, rebounding, and fast break offense. The weaknesses were foul-shooting and turnovers.

Coach Smith indentified the outstanding shooters as Dennis Mingo, Bill Jones, Scott Haugen, Brent Jasmer, Kevin Lighheart and Mark Brabham. Outstanding defensive players were Scott Akins and Jeff Price. Overall leadership and good ball handling came from Scott Shilling. Most improved were Troy Mathews and Mike Walmsley. Todd Wagner was noted as a good hustler.

Girls JV Basketball triumphs

The Girls Junior Varsity Basketball team had a very successful season, according to Coach Ginny Revell. "The team had a very close relationship and any combination of five players could come up with winning results", she said. Her assessment was validated by the team's winning record of 16-4.

The team also spent one weekend washing cars in order to buy warm up tops.

The team voted Loni Walker, most valuable player; Pam Shindledecker, most inspirational; and Debbie Barnhart, most improved.

Wrestlers pin hopes on future

Finishing sixth in the district left head wrestling coach Dennis Batsch with a lot to look forward to. The season was his worst in three years as head coach here.

With as many freshman (four) as juniors and seniors on the varsity squad, they were too young by all counts. Injuries also hurt two of the strongest wrestlers. Scott Batsch tore his shoulder during the season and Brad Christensen wrestled at district with a 104° temperature, losing to a wrestler 5-3 he had previously clobbered 19-0.

At the beginning of the season, combined varsity and junior varsity teams numbered 52. Thirty-two finished the season.

Still, coach Batsch noted the grapplers attitude and effort to improve as "excellent". "Our biggest problem was the inexperienced wrestlers. But they listened, worked hard and improved," he said.

The Colt's team captain was district champion Cameron Foroud. Other honors went to Kurt Krasneski, most improved; Ken Elliot, most inspirational; Brad Christensen, most dedicated; and Scott Batsch, outstanding wrestler.

Human scissors like these made by Mark Babcock's legs cut down this wrestler unfortunate enough to come within Mark's reach.

Swimmers send two to state

Thurston swimmers catch their breath before the starter gives his signal.

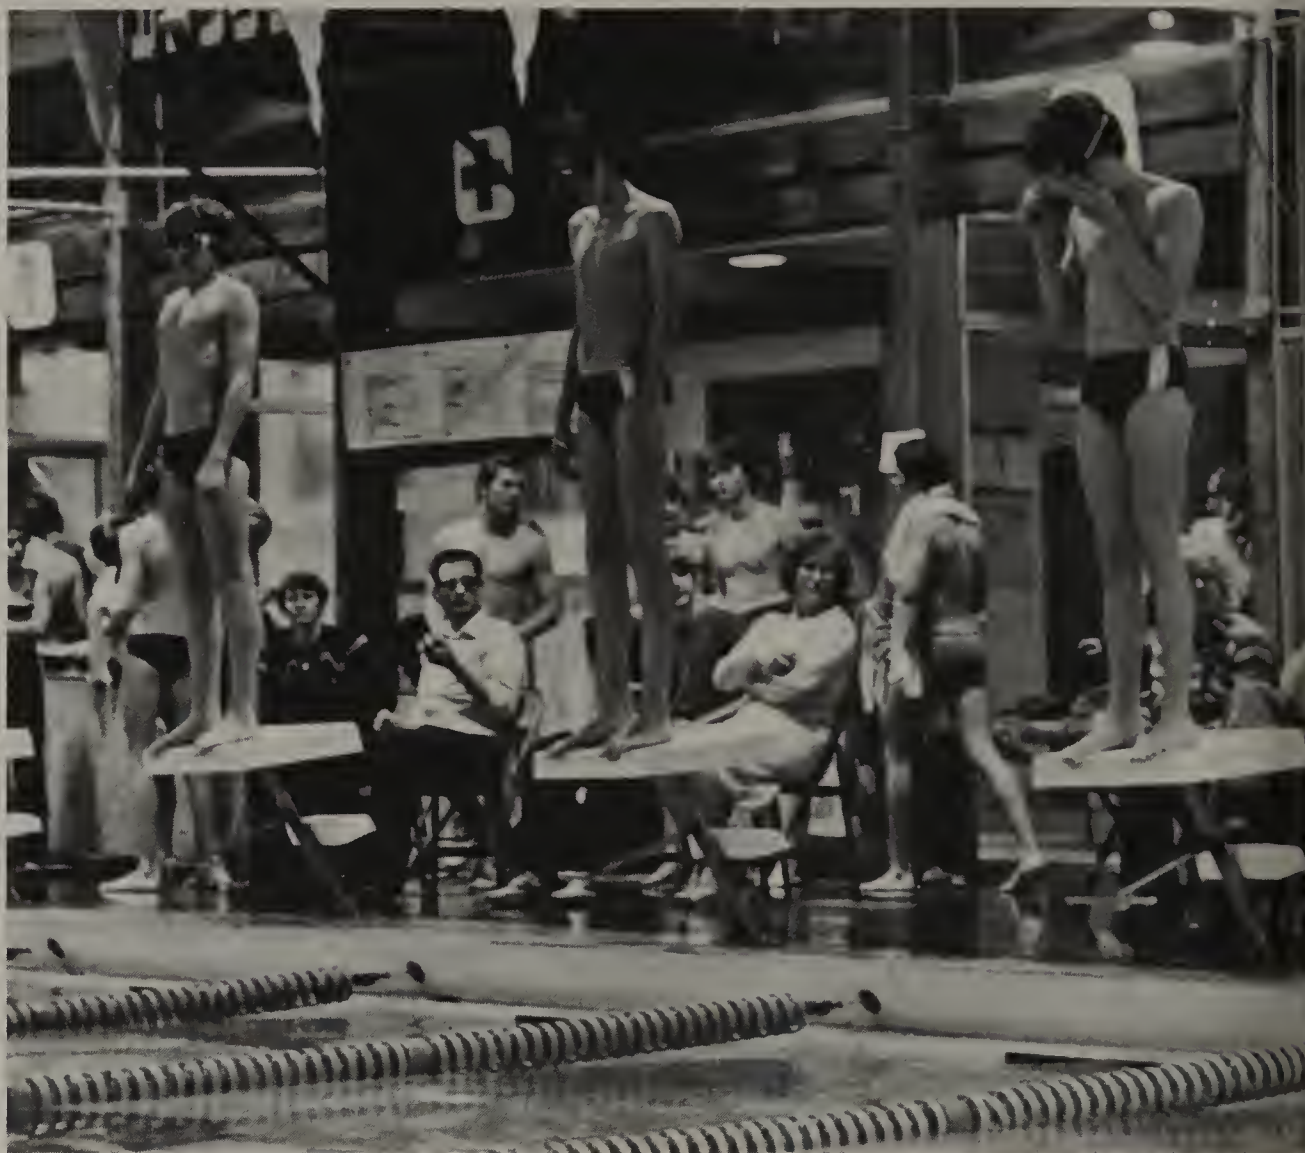

Strong performances by seniors Richard Kline and John Cheesman led the Colt swimmers to an eleventh place finish at the state swimming meet. Kline took second in the 50 meter free-style.

In the state consolodation races, Cheesman came in seventh in the butterfly and tenth in the 50 freestyle.

The Colts 400 meter freestyle relay team of John Cheesman, Richard Kline, Mark Willcut and Jeff Berg placed eighth.

At district finals, Kline set a new district record in the 50 freestyle. Mark Willcut took sixth in the 50 freestyle and twelfth in the 100 freestyle in consolodation.

For the girls, the year brought a number of personal records. At district, Janine Miller clocked 1:16.79 in the 100 breast stroke preliminaries which almost broke the school record of 1:16.6. She was the only girl to advance to the finals where she finished sixth.

Winter rallies full of energy

The Winter rallies were full of spunk and energy. The members really enjoyed themselves along with the student body. Fund raisers included selling carnations for Valentine's Day and calendars.

According to Varsity member Bobbi

Christmas alive with talent

Christmas—the jolly, generous season said to bring out the best in people—brought out a full complement of Thurston talent to celebrate the holidays.

A choral concert on December 10 and an instrumental program December 17 drew more than 400 music(ian) lovers to the under-construction cafeteria.

On the first of the 14-day vacation, the 60-member marching band made its annual entry in the Springfield Christmas parade. The route began at the Springfield Mall and stretched nearly five miles to the end of Main Street. The band was followed by the flag girls and Ponietails. Other school entries came from the student council, flag Ski Club and FBLA.

Although no white fluff fell from the sky to add to the atmosphere, the weather was appropriately cold, wet and windy for an Oregon winter.

Drummers Brent Jasmer and Guy Hurst pound out the beat for Thurston's Marching band as they head down the home-stretch of the five-mile parade route.

Free at last! Free at last!

Former hostage Victor Tomseth returns to Oregon with his wife, Wallapa. A reception was held for Tomseth at his alma mater, Springfield High School, and at the Rodeway Inn.

The Capitol Building looms in the background as the hostages and their families are carried down Pennsylvania Avenue lined with thousands of well-wishers on January 27.

The news: America comes home again

A new president and the end of a nightmare.

A bad dream lasting 444 days for the nation, and especially for America's 52 hostages, came to an end amid a spectacular display of emotion that swept the country back into a proud posture.

On the same day, January 20, Ronald Reagan was inaugurated as the 40th President of the United States--ending the single term of Jimmy Carter who was plagued, and eventually defeated, by his inability to free the hostages held in Iran.

But even the former president must have felt elated as he greeted the group at Wiesbaden, West Germany on their second day of freedom.

Back home, the country was getting decked out for a massive reception. Even Thurston tied on miles of ribbon in the popular yellow--both through the building and on most of the students.

It was as if President Reagan had taken over a new country. But the joy was short-lived when a gunman shot the president and three others in an assassination attempt on March 30. Fortunately, Reagan recovered from his chest wound and returned to the White House after 12 days in the hospital.

The nation's mood went back on the upswing less than a month later, however, with the successful launching and landing of the space shuttle Columbia. According to Newsweek, America's faith in technology was reconfirmed as the untested engineering phenomenon hurled astronauts John Young and Robert Crippen 36 orbits around the earth in 54 hours. As the shuttle re-entered earth's atmosphere (reaching temperatures of 2700 degrees) on April 14, and Young brought the massive craft under control, the nation was ready, as flight director Don Puddy put it, to: "Prepare for exhilaration!"

News of the attempted assassination draws a crowd of somber students to the library to watch the coverage on tv.

A startled president looks toward the sound of gunfire a split second before the bullet hits him.

Placers were: Toni Yates, first in 300 hurdles; Suzii Johnson, fourth in high jump; the mile relay, run by Lori Hooker, Pam Shindledecker, Suzii Johnson and Toni Yates, placed fourth; and Mary Lytle was fifth in discus. Imates went on to compete at state in the 300 hurdles, where she said later, "I psyched myself out and failed to place."

Varsity sets new record

Despite some inconsistent play, the varsity baseball team just missed the district playoffs with a league record of 8-10.

The team set a new school record in hitting .298, which broke the old record by nine percentate points.

Coach Lange said that if the team could have won a few more of their close ball games they could have easily made the league playoffs.

Three Colt players made the district all star squad. Tracy Olsen was the only first team pick at second base while Greg Sapp was an honorable mention in the outfield and Mike Leveque was an honorable mention at catcher.

Varsity softball: little victories, big defeats

The varsity softball team's losing record did not tell the whole story. Coach Harley Dixon said the 13 girls played well against the best teams in the state, often losing very close games.

There were some big victories, too, such as a 15-2 slaughter of the Sheldon Irish. In that mid-season game, Kathy Metzler tallied three RBI's and pitcher Shari Southworth allowed only the two scoring hits.

Noted for team recognition were: most valuable players, Jackie Coburn and Kathy Metzler; most improved, Nicki Hopkins; and most inspirational, Annette Cutsforth. Five girls also received all-league honors. Pam Buss was named to the second team and Jackie Coburn, Kathy Metzler, Nicki Hopkins and Guen Reynolds received honorable mentions.

Coach Harley Dixon questions (diplomatically) the umpire's eyesight concerning a play at third base.

Christy Fisher runs in from the pitcher's mound to tag a Willamette player coming into score.

Golfers move up during finals

Fans who followed the Thurston golf team through the season would have noticed the improvement made during the year. The seven golfers moved from No. 7 in their first all district tournament to No. 3, where it really counted, at Tokatee in the District 5AAA finals.

Trailing the leaders by 13 strokes after the first day at district, the golfers were in 3rd place, (the top two teams at district go to state). On the second day they gained 8 shots but missed going to state as a team by 5.

Scott Shilling tied for the No. 4 individual spot in district, so he went to state as an individual. Scott, only a sophomore, finished in the top 30 in a field of over 120 of the state's best in Portland.

Coach Ron Creps named Scott Shilling and Rick Sprouse as the outstanding golfers.

Girls tennis sets busy season

Behind the tennis team's success were co-captains Kim Merlan and Yolonda McCoy, returning for their third year on the team. Kim held the No. 1 singles position and Yolonda claimed the No. 1 doubles position with senior Debbie Krey as her partner. Also in her third year was Theresa Fonnesbeck playing singles.

Two strong returning juniors, Loni Walker and Chris Peterson also showed great potential, said Coach Bobbie Haas. Chris was doubles partner with sophomore Robin Bigelow in the No. 2 position. Another strong sophomore was Julie Marquardt and Coach Haas said freshman Ai Nguyen was a real "go-getter" and a talented player.

Boys continue to improve

The boys tennis team has steadily improved the past few years and this year was no exception. Although winning only two matches all year, the players had many close ones going down to the wire.

The Colts were lead by No. 1 singles players Mike Larson, and No. 2 players Scott Paulson, freshman. Both were the only players to score team points in district. Mike and Scott also teamed up to be the No. 1 doubles team. The No. 3 singles player was senior John Lawrence. Senior Ruben Ortega and junior Damon White teamed up to be the No. 2 doubles.

The team voted Mike Larson the most valuable player; Nathan McClellan received the most improved player award.

'You're a Good Man Charlie Brown'

Clark Gesner's comedy "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown," based on the comic strip "Peanuts," ran four nights, April 3, 4, 10 and 11 in the school cafeteria to a full and enthusiastic house.

Twelve songs were performed in the 2-hour-long production. These renditions were accompanied by a five-chair ensemble. The most popular selections were "Happiness" and "You're A Good Man, Charle Brown," which were both performed by the entire cast.

Preparation for the play began early in the year after the auditions. Each performer practiced many hours, at separate rehearsals, depending on the character.

Reactions to the play were quite positive. Typical comments were: "The singing was great" and "The skits were hilarious."

Snoopy (Kathy Hill) sings about supper-time.

Charlie Brown (Jeff Edom) performs the solo "The Baseball Game."

The Industrial and Fine Arts Fair joined forces with the Health Fair to provide a varied and entertaining evening for the community on May 7.

Weeks were spent by the shop and art classes preparing for the fair, during which students displayed their work they had completed during the year and demonstrated skills they had acquired. Plants, baked goods, wood projects, metalwork and art work were sold to the public, while the medical careers students checked blood pressures and the home ec representatives lectured on proper eating habits and child development. The swing choir and jazz ensemble provided entertainment for the event.

Refreshments were served toward the end of the evening as various items were raffled off to the more than 600 people attending.

Spirited elections put six into office

New student body officers were elected in April after two weeks of activities including a spirited convention and a campaign rally conducted in the courtyard.

The process was not without its critics, though. According to a front page story in the Pony Express, "signs, costumes, squirt guns, confetti, paper wads and water balloons bombarded the stage set for the ASB convention."

The officers of president and vice-president were decided before the elections began, as Todd Alberts and Todd Jones were the only students to run for the offices. However, 12 ambitious students ran for the remaining four offices: Ruth Rowland won the position of historical director; Christi Davis, activities director; Andy Petersen, financial director; Shawn Buystedt, communications director.

Casting their votes (top) during the ASB election are Eric Carpenter, Shannon Wise, Mark Edwards, Malinda Rath, Vera Kast, Chris Westfall, Cherylyn Petersen, Bob DenOuden.

Unopposed presidential candidates Todd Alberts and Todd Jones give a speech while the rest of the candidates and the student body look on.

ASB keeps activities coming

The student council helped sponsor a number of activities. These projects ranged from dances and charity drives to fun times and money for clubs.

A few of the new activities were the movie "Hard Times," Spring Week, and the activities sign advertising upcoming events which was placed in front of the school.

The dances were Hello, Homecoming, the Print and Cord and the prom: Homecoming and the prom were held by the Senior and Junior classes.

Other sponsored activities included the Christmas parade, in which the Ski Club, FBLA and ASB displayed floats, a canned food drive for charity and a bumper sticker contest.

In addition, the Executive Council allocated student body funds to student organizations.

... consisted of more than 133 courses taught by 78 teachers. At times, these classes all seemed so much alike; then so different.

Yet, like hundreds of paths crisscrossing a mountain side, they all led to the same place—the top—23 credits and graduation.

Beginning with the Class of 1982, 22 credits will be required for graduation.

Industrial Arts does well

According to industrial education teachers John Connolly and Chuck Lange, their shop classes both had outstanding years. Welding teacher Mr. Connolly, emphasized the development of the employable personality and good attendance as the main part of his classes. Mr. Lange's goals for the year was to teach occupational skills, discipline and a good working attitude. Both felt that the year went well for all their classes and expect more of the same next year as many of the same faces return.

Last spring in the state VICA competition, junior Troy Schroeder placed first in the gas welding phase and Dan Kintigh finished second in sheet metal working. Mr. Lange said that Neil Sterns and Rick Plouse placed high in the cabinet making portion of the competition.

Fine Arts offers variety

Personal development through creative, artistic expression was the horizon toward which the fine arts classes sailed. In the fifteen classes, students received instruction in a particular area and worked on their individual projects.

Offered were courses in leather, stained glass, jewelry, ceramics, commercial art, drawing, painting and art survey taught by Gary Guttormsen, Marcia Graham and Dave Elgin.

In addition to their own projects, students in the classes kept the various construction sites around the school more attractive with a variety of murals.

Music—it flows and goes

Practices, concerts, festivals, games, parades, plays and travel kept more than one hundred Thurston musicians on the go.

A spring trip to Marriott's Great America highlighted the marching band's activities. While there, the band played for tourists at the popular attraction.

The jazz band spent time on the road too, traveling to the Monmouth Jazz Festival and to Pleasant Hill where the group placed second in competition.

At the Spring Concert, several band members received awards for improvement; seniors were honored; and Debbie Curtis received the John Philip Sousa Award for her many hours of work.

The choral groups attended three festivals: Salem Vocal Jazz, Pleasant Jazz (placing fourth) and the Metro.

The hum of Clea May's cello adds richness to the string section of the orchestra.

Flutists Andrea Westover, Stacy Davis and Nicola Hopkins add their instruments high-pitched trills to the performance of the brass and woodwinds ensemble in concert.

Three of the barbershop quartet--Jeff Moore, Brent Jasmer and Tom Horton--harmonize and revise tunes from the Golden Age of music.

Mollie Rennie leads the swing choir through a jazz number at the Spring Concert.

The way the pros run a newspaper is observed at the Springfield News by Todd Wagner, Ruth Rowland, Shawn Buystedt and Ruthanne Thompson. The newspaper class produced the Pony Express following a semester of dormancy. The paper came out with its first issue in February. Students and teachers remarked that the newspaper was a vast improvement over past issues.

One-to one instruction in writing comes from Mr. Milton Cunningham in his class where he assists Sherri Casto and Larry Sargent.

Languages-something for all

In Language Arts there was, as the saying goes, something for everyone—not in the mini courses of the past decade, but instruction in reading and writing for students on different levels of ability and desire. In addition to English at A, B and C levels, classes were offered for teenagers who had advanced to high school without learning to read or write effectively (or at the appropriate grade level).

For the administration and English teachers, the concern had shifted from 'Why can't Johnny read?' to 'How can we teach him?'

For the students who were classified as "learner disabled," separate classes were offered and taught by teachers whose training was in special education.

At the other end of the scale, the high-level students were not ignored. A-level classes, plus advanced composition and AP English classes gave rigorous reading and writing assignments.

In the elective field, students could choose among offerings in sports, literature, foreign languages—French, German and Spanish and publications—newspaper and yearbook.

Most English classes like Ms. Virginia Cunningham's average 30 students.

Social studies scans change

A rapidly changing world offered an abundance of source material for students studying and exploring the social and psychological complexities of modern and past life. The radicalism of the sixties and seventies, plus the narcissism of the last decade seemed to have slid into the passage of time. What the country was to become was left open to question. Classes in AP History, SUTOE and world history attempted to answer some of the questions.

Tiffany Miller watches as Shari Southworth raises her hand to offer an answer in Mr. Purvis' AP history class.

Business provides a future

When qualified, experienced people are looking for work (the definition of unemployment), the chances for the inexperienced are bleak at best. Still, job turnover is regular enough so that openings do exist for the persistent and the qualified.

Business teacher Diana Glenn maintains that students completing the business program are prepared for a job. Toward that end, students complete advanced typing, shorthand and clerical office procedures.

In the latter class, seniors review clerical skills and then participate in an office simulation known as the Lester Hill Corporation. In the class, each student is a member of the corporation and performs tasks to keep it operating and out of debt.

On an individual level, classes in personal finance address income and taxes.

Mrs. Ester Lang's beginning typing class works on an assignment.

Ruthanne Thompson argues on behalf of the defendant in a personal finance class.

Aaron David practices warmups attentively, prior to his assignment.

No traditions in Home Ec

Even in high school there is life. Students with vocational and leisure interests in taking care of others found their niche in the classes traditionally associated with home economics (cooking, housekeeping, sewing, nursing).

But then, these classes were far from traditional. Boys made their presence felt in home economics as definitely as girls were becoming established in shop, auto and weight-lifting classes.

Nor were the classes confined to classrooms and text books. The culinary classes taught by Judy Evans took advantage of the rare sunny weather to barbeque and have a Hawaiian luau (minus the whole pig).

Health occupations, supervised by school nurse Muriel Lange, went beyond the classroom to get first-hand experience working alongside the medical, dental and rescue personnel in the city from February to June.

In reverse order, Mrs. Sandy Barrett's Child Development class brought the outside world—in the person of 10 preschoolers—into the classroom where the high school students operated a day-care center for several weeks.

Computers generate added interest in math

Imagine this exchange between two friends at lunch:

One (gulping his food down): "Sorry I can't talk now, I've got to go to the math room."

Two: "Oh, are you behind in there?"

One: "No. I just like working math problems on the terminals."

Sound crazy? Maybe, but if one looks in the back of Room 113 during lunch (or before and after school), he will see sure-enough people (students) hooked into one of the computers or OTIS terminals.

According to math teacher Gus Renwick, the students are developing and practicing modern mathematical skills and enjoying it.

Some students even got to put their basic and advanced math skills to the test against other schools. In April, Lane Community College sponsored a Math Skills Fair at which students earned points by completing problems. Thurston placed seventh out of 12 schools.

Students from here were: Lisa Scott and Mike Scalon (General Math); Tina Burroughs and Mark Ellsworth (Algebra I); Ruth Rowland and Lisa Stern (Geometry); Luke Burroughs and Gary Inselman (Algebra II); Joanne Simmons and Owen Morgan (Advanced Math I and II).

Sciences question origins (and what follows)

Science classes did not undergo any earth-shattering changes; nor were there any significant laboratory explosions or poisonings. They did come close to a substantial jolt, though.

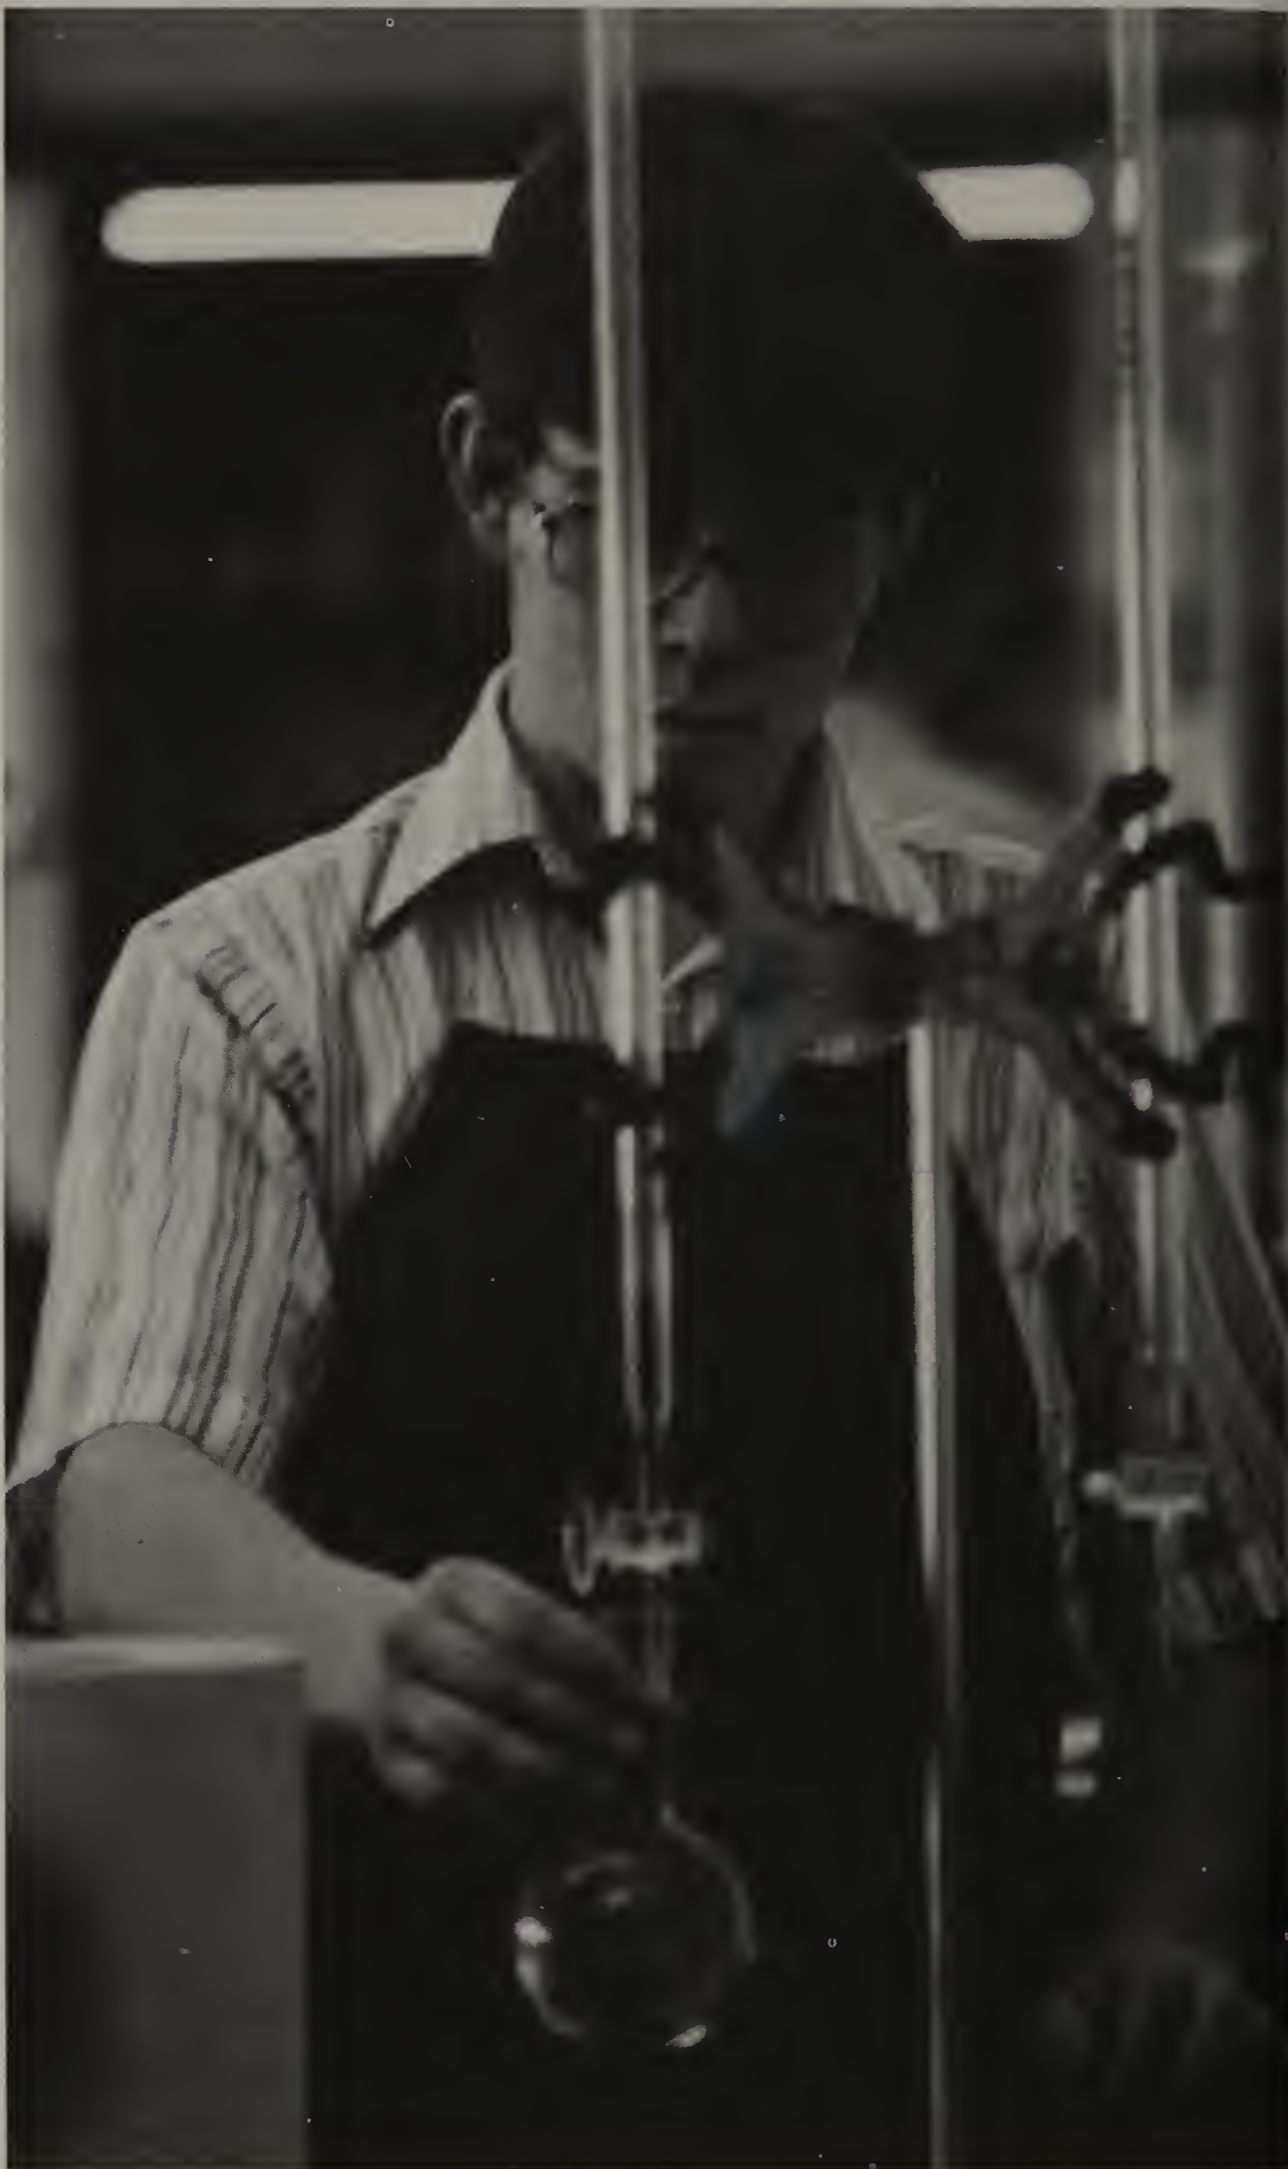

The source of the rumbling concerned questions as basic as the beginning of life. Basic, perhaps, but also highly inflammatory when it came to looking for answers in the classroom. Did God create life as the Bible states, and is there scientific evidence to prove it? Or did higher forms (humans) evolve through a mysterious process involving natural selection (survival of the fittest) which began on earth billions of years ago? Creation or evolution?

While the teachers had little difficulty teaching objectively, several district patrons—like many others across the nation—argued that evolution was being taught as doctrine (the truth) in the classrooms. They wanted God to get equal time, some said.

Thurston biology teacher Tom Wareham, denied claims that he gave preference to evolutionary theory. "In fact," he said, "we look at three possibilities." The third one being that life was transported from an extraterrestrial location (outer space).

A majority (by 3-2) of the school board members agreed to maintain the status quo and put the issue to rest for the year by voting to deny a request in investigate the issue in more detail.

Body building—P.E. favorite

New weight-lifting equipment was purchased by the P.E. department in order to expand the potential of the classes for students. Several organizations donated funds for the weights. Some of these clubs were the football teams, WAC, Student council and the weightlifting team, which placed first in the state competition.

Other than the basic sports such as football, basketball and baseball, new and unusual sports and activities were taught. These included square dancing, mushball, badminton and archery.

Brad Werner smashes the ball into the out-field as his teammates look on.

A freshman P.E. Class enjoys the variations of folk-dancing.

Jim Sanders gets pumped to press some weight.

Health

A health-mobile visit helped students find out just how healthy they really were. The service gave information on blood pressure, weight and life expectancy.

Health classes taught life-saving techniques which concentrated on mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Also taught were bandaging, poison treatment and how to prevent premature illnesses and death.

Carla Akins, Stuart Mathew and Mekki Oker enjoy the spring sunshine during Mr. Dennis Batsch's mental health class.

Special ed encourages self development

The primary emphasis of special education was community survival. There were many programs which taught survival skills to the students.

One such program was a project concerning the use of money. The students were able to vocationally work at Albertson's and the school store, selling miscellaneous items. Other programs included working at Thurston Middle School, McKenzie Willamette Hospital and the EMU at the University of Oregon. These projects gave experience in serving food in the cafeteria, maintenance work, washing laundry and cleaning erasers.

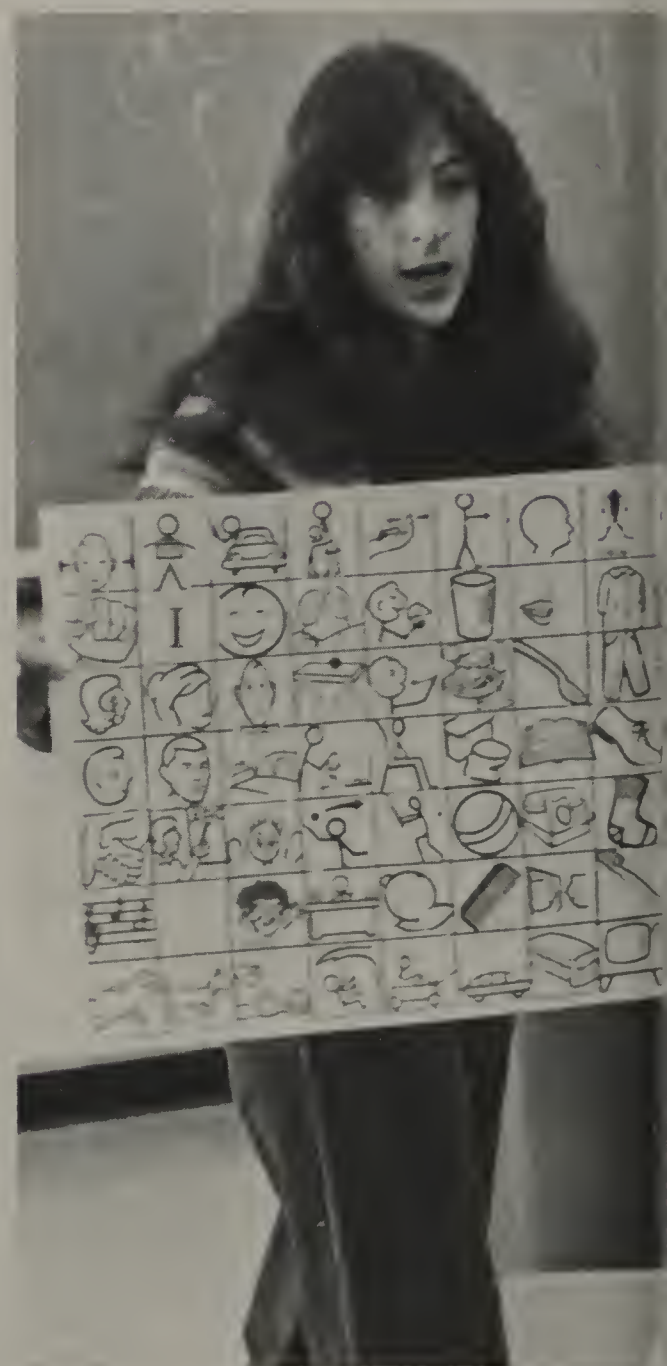

All of these procedures prepared the students to find and maintain an occupation after their education has ended.

Individuals ...

It takes all kinds, and Thurston has them. People organizing and running the system, maintenance workers, secretaries, cooks, aides, teachers . . . and we, the students, —creating jobs for more than 100 adults and a variety of experiences for ourselves. We gave according to our abilities and expectations; we received according to our needs and desires.

People—they are a changin'

As the world turns, so too did the staff. Several teachers took sabbatical (study) leaves of absences or returned from them; some were hired, one retired. And most likely, all kept a sharp lookout for the grim reaper—otherwise known as RIF (reduction in force).

Returning after a sabbatical leave was Royce Osborne, vocal music teacher and Fine Arts department head. Janet Brandenberg took over the chemistry teaching duties of George Carlson while he was on leave. Ray Chiapuzzio and Lynn Peterson were also on a year's leave. However, Mr. Peterson retained his coaching duties of the swim team.

Sheila Lewellen moved up from the middle school to replace Karen Banks in the P.E. department. Mrs. Lewellen also took over the head Girls track coaching position.

Veteran English teacher and publications adviser Clara Powell retired in mid year following a protracted illness. She was replaced by Greg Howard who had started the year as the Saturday school supervisor.

Other changes were being announced as the year drew to a close. Staff reduction and returning staff members displaced Renee Metcalfe and Chuck Wenger. Bill Goddell and Dave Hufford took leaves of absences.

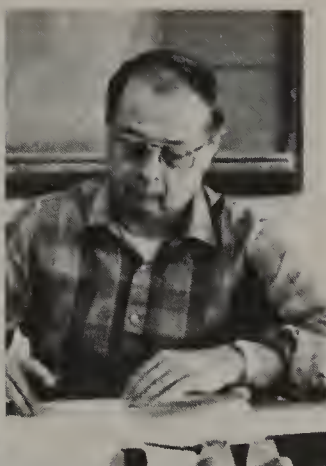

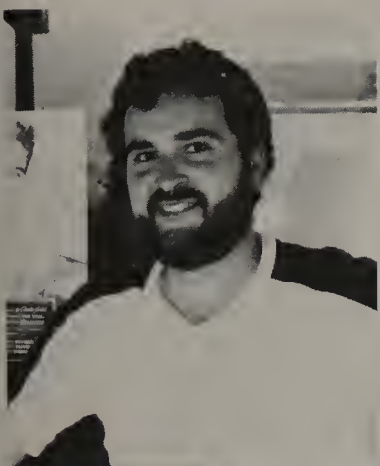

On the lighter side, Ginny Todd tied a nuptial knot with John Revell. Dave Elgin and Greg Howard became first-time fathers of boys. Bill Smith added number four to his list of offspring. Renee Metcalfe gave birth to a girl.

Freshmen find first year fun

To create a stronger sense of togetherness, the Class of '84 inaugurated Freshmen night. The Friday night event drew more than 200 of the 380 Freshmen out of hiding for the dance (shown at bottom), games and pizza eating good times.

The crowd of freshmen night party goers take the opportunity to get in touch with each other during a slow number.

Sophomores tops in size, spirit

Sophomores had the most spirit of all of the classes at Thurston in 1980-81. With a total of 412 Sophomores, there was much energy to spare. Few were the pep assemblies where the Class of '83 failed to win the yell competition. The class also won the canned food drive and made a strong showing in magazine sales. C-O-L-T-S! Go! Fight! Win!

Juniors go for low profile

Something happened to the juniors when it came to spirit shown during the pep assemblies. With a few exceptions of placing second to last, the Class of '83 had a monopoly on last place in yell competition. They weren't always this way, however. In the canned food drive they placed second, beating out the seniors and the sophomores. They took third in the magazine drive at the beginning of the year, which provided funds for the prom. And under the leadership of their class officers, they succeeded in moving the prom out of the cafeteria to the Valley River Inn for the first year.

Junior Class Officers: President Todd Alberts, Vice President Todd Jones, Treasurer Andy Petersen, Social Promotor Julie Walker, Secretary Judy Walton.

Graduation—a new beginning

Graduation had a large turnout of both spectators and participants. It was held in the main gym. Tickets, which were in great demand, had to be obtained before the popular ceremony.

"These are the best of times" was the theme for the Class of '81. Valedictorians were Ed Kosydar, Joanne Simmons and Pat Walch. Kendra DeVos and Stuart Mathew were the class salutatorians.

Diplomas were given to the graduates by Mr. Jim Bacon. Invocation was given by Linda Garcia and Benediction by Pat Walch. Class response was given by Senior Class President Brenda Evans. Juniors Christi Davis and Ernie Smith served as escorts.

The music selections were directed by David Hattenhauer and Richard Berg. A solo was performed by John Tatgenhorst.

Clockwise from above: Owen Morgan, Bo Binder, Brian Hooker, Chuck Stallings and Mike Viliardos share good times.

Tim Walmsley, Kelly Canaday, Richard Kline and Rick Sprouse ham it up as Troy Cameron and Gary Barnhart observe.

Dianne Smith hugs a friend farewell.

Tammy Gadomski shows mixed emotions before the ceremony.

Carla Akins and Todd Walker reminisce about past experiences in school.

Co-valedictorian Ed Kosydar receives his award from Principal Herb DeVos.

The graduates and spectators listen to the band's performance.

Tammy Linton switches her tassel from right to left after receiving her diploma.

Another year has gone

Another year has passed; some of the students who shared times at Thurston will never return, but they'll have their memories and this book to remember, this year of 1981.

It was a year of shocks and a year of change. Some things we'll want to remember, others we'll want to forget. In this book we have attempted to record events of significance that occurred during the year; things that touched the students here at Thurston.

1981 was a very good year, cherish it and remember it. We hope you enjoyed the Yearling.

Sadie Goulet prepares to board her bus at the end of another school day.

Tina Burroughs, along with the rest of the delegates from her homeroom, casts a vote during the convention.

Linda Fetter, Lisa Fisher and Debbie Lynch join their teammates in comforting Renee Jones.

Matt Berkshire and Jamie Robinson catch some rays and enjoy one another's company on the senior patio.

Every man, woman and child will use a tree this year.

A pretty good-size tree, too.

For everything from paneling to toilet tissue. Together, these wood products add up to a tree 20 inches in diameter and 100 feet tall.

That's why our High Yield Forestry program is so important. We're making sure future generations have the same easy access to wood and wood products that we have today.

Unlike coal or oil, wood is a renewable resource. Proper management and long-range planning are vital in assuring a dependable supply.

We planted 190 million trees on our lands nationwide in 1976 alone. Because we want you to be able to enjoy our forestlands forever. Without giving up grocery sacks, building materials, pencils or fire logs.

Weyerhaeuser.

We're here to stay. And so are the trees.

Acknowledgments

Putting a yearbook together from September to May or June with an experienced staff is hard enough. But when a new adviser appears in November and finally puts a new staff together in March, the difficulties have multiplied like the Med fly. (Yes, this is July.)

Still, the job is done. Finally. The staff has recorded the facts and figures which make Thurston what it is and made the year what it was. In compiling this history, they strove for accuracy, fairness and attractiveness. For an inexperienced group, meeting those objectives was a chore to say the very least. Work was done and redone—with deadlines past—more than most would care to count, or recount.

This book is a product of all who worked on it, but two students deserve special credit. Kelly Hopper and Christi Davis were responsible for seeing the project through until the end. Getting it done is what counts, finally, and they did it.

Summertime assistance also came from Julie Lee, Kelly Bomark, and Mark Ellsworth.

Of course, a yearbook is not done in the summer alone. Excellent photographic coverage of school events was coordinated by head photographer Curtis Shields. He was assisted by Mark Ellsworth, John Bauder, Rob Romig and Mark Bates.

Layout, research and copy writing also came from Dawn Haas, Tammy Poleski and the summer crew. Students in the newspaper class collected the data for the curriculum section. They were: Ruth Rowland, Susan Kennedy, Tanya Michlanski and Rob Romig (Shawn, where's yours?)

Jeanne Coe, who said she had some great ideas for the yearbook, completed the senior section (alone). She doesn't want to hear about it now, though.

The Yearling would be considerably thinner (by more than 30 pages) were it not for the advertising space sold. Gary Barnhart, Mike Larson and Kelly Canady topped the staff in sales volume. And Gail Chase and Bonnie Bye kept the sales pitch going right up to the end of the year, pulling in several more large ads.

One of the more onerous tasks, the index of every person pictured in the book, was initiated by Cindy Quinn. Kelly and Christi completed the job.

Although The Yearling is primarily a student publication, significant contributions were made by adults. A special thanks goes to Herb DeVos for his skillful administrative support. It would not have happened without him.

Thurston's teaching staff also provided indirect assistance by excusing yearbook staff members who interrupted or missed their classes on countless occasions. (Not to mention being called at home at all hours to repeat information for the umpteenth time.) The coaches and club advisers supplied scores, names and much of the raw material in their sections.

In addition, Marcia Graham and her commercial art class sketched several sample yearbook covers which stimulated the staff's final choice. Gary Guttormsen took pictures at the state volleyball tournament and on skiing trips.

Thanks also to the Springfield News for loaning their proof sheets and negatives of football, gymnastics, cross country and track.

Copies of the wire photos on the news pages came from the library of the Eugene Register-Guard with permission from Barrie Hartman, managing editor, and Howard Graves of Associated Press, bureau chief.

Leon Keefe, of School Pictures, Inc., gave the negatives or prints of several team pictures the yearbook photographers had taken on invisible film. He also assisted during the group picture session and took all of the underclass mugs.

For little money and much trouble, Moderne Studio kept the photographers equipped with film, paper, chemistry and advice. John Briggs also had his crew work on printing several negatives that lesser mortals would have given up on.

As the book's due date went from overdue to

Way overdue, some rush typesetting of the index (only about 1600 names and at least three times as many page numbers) was completed by Editing and Design.

And finally, to the ones who have to make sense out of where to put what how big and when, Herff-Jones themselves: thank you. To Rand Wilhelmsen, the account representative who earns a 30 per cent commission: you're welcome.
